VOLUME SEVEN

PUBLISHED BY THE
SENIOR CLASS OF CENTRAL CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL
TOLEDO, OHIO

NINETEEN HUNDRED AND TWENTY-SEVEN

*To the Pioneers
of the Church of Toledo
"who have gone before us with the sign of faith and sleep in the sleep of peace," whose fidelity to Religion was the foundation and promise of all that is or is to come;*

To the Bishops and Priests of yesterday and today whose trust in the Bishop and Pastor of Souls gave them the vision of prophets and the ardor of Apostles, whose words and deeds were "a lamp to the feet and a light to the ways" in the progress of a new people towards advanced education, made wholesome and saving by Religion;

To the teaching Nuns blessed and glorified in the humility and charity of the Virgin of Virgins, whose sacrifices, forgetfulness of self and generosity made Catholic teaching possible and adequate; who were the example of consecrated life to young men and young women;

To the perpetual remembrance of the Catholics of Toledo of 1926, who, out of their plenty and out of their poverty, in their love for learning and in their anxiety for the souls of children, pledged themselves to their father in God, Bishop Samuel A. Stritch, to build, even to the extreme of sacrifice, a new Central Catholic High School, as a memorial of their reverence for the Church, in token of their deep sense of the necessity of Catholic training for Catholic youth,

This book is gratefully and affectionately inscribed.

DEDICATION

The unifying theme of this book is
Toledo—its past, its present, its advantages for future development. Every line has been written with the purpose of expressing, on the part of the student body of Central Catholic High School, the awakening appreciation of the city in which their parents believe.

FOREWORD

ORDER OF BOOKS

Expectations of the New C. C. H. S.

THE fulfillment of many promises, the turning of hopes into reality, the reward of our sacrifices—this, in a word, is the new Central Catholic High School.

On April 8 of 1926, the purchase of the Curtis estate at the corner of Cherry and Austin streets became effective and immediately, in the minds of the promoters, began the building of an appropriate institution. Previous to the purchase, preliminary sketches of a proposed building were drawn, but, with the purchase of the property, certain limitations were made as to its immediate use for building purposes. These necessitated a very careful study of the possibilities for construction afforded by the property available. In consequence, the final plans have been considerably delayed.

Building plans are at present in the making and give assurance of providing ideal facilities for caring for the needs of a modern high school.

The site is centrally located, an advantage not to be under-estimated, for the availability of the school to all city parishes is vital. The plans, as they now stand, contemplate devoting one section to the science, art, and commercial departments. Other features are: an excellent library, a small auditorium, and classroom space in the central wing; a small chapel placed near the main entrance. Provisions will also be made for a cafeteria. What will be of particular interest to the students is a thoroughly modern gymnasium in a building to be erected later on.

These features assure the future students of Central all the possible advantages which may be had from a completely modern high school building.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO

*At the brink of limpid Erie,
The timid buck and doe
Drank fearlessly at morn and eve,
A hundred years ago.
Bright laughing waters showered spray
On Indians' swarthy skin,
And forest glades resounded to
The tread of moccasin.*

*The moon, in fright, withdrew her face,
And hid behind a cloud,
When forests rang with battle shrieks,
And tomahawks crashed loud.
Red camp-fires gleamed through dusky night,
And many tales were told
Of deeds performed by chiefs long dead,
Great warriors, brave and bold.*

*Today a gracious city stands
On the banks of that same Maumee;
Large vessels sail up to the wharves,
And ships steam out to sea.
That river boasts a harbor now
Which freighters love to woo;
Where steamships large with noisy tugs
Hold daily rendezvous.*

*We've lined our furnaces and docks
Along that open shore,
And the commerce of the whole wide world
Comes knocking at our door.
We've built our homes and schools there, too,
We feel those breezes blow,
Which Indians in their forests felt

OUR FACULTY

VERY few people realize that the faculty of Central Catholic High School numbers forty-four members, forty-four men and women with this sole interest at heart—the education of the Catholic youth of Toledo.

Of this number thirty-three are full-time teachers. The members of the faculty include twelve priests who conduct the religion classes. Some of these priests are engaged in teaching Latin and mechanical drawing.

There are twenty-one Sisters.

Six Franciscan Sisters have charge of the science and mathematics departments.

The Notre Dame Sisters have charge of the commercial and art departments and assist in the Latin classes. They number five.

The Ursuline Nuns, numbering ten, have charge of the English department, the department of modern languages, and the domestic science department.

With Abraham Lincoln, the students of Central Catholic High School may well say all that they are, all that they have, all that they ever hope to be, they owe to the untiring zeal and inspiration of their teachers.

CLASSES

OUR HERITAGE

GLORIOUS Middle Ages! With tournament made bright!
In manly sport and feat of arms, men took their chief delight.
Brave, chivalrous knights, who rode to fight for ladies fair,
Cavorted gaily in the lists amid trumpets' noisy blare.
Blithe centuries of song when the troubere's lyric notes
Resounded from the castle grounds across the silent moats.

Stern, black-robed monks spent happy lives in solitude of cell;
They rose; they worked; retired to the daily sound of bell.
Their work of copying pages adorned with colors rare,
They offered up to God with the incense of their prayer.
To Medieval Ages, a debt the world must own
For those great seats of learning, Paris, Oxford, and Bologne.

We glory in the Heritage which those times to us impart,
For the works of greatest masters in literature and art.
Cathedrals, paintings, statues, and sweetest strains divine,
Delight the eye and please the ear since that bright, happy time,—
The inspiration of it all, our Mother Church's voice.
In this, our glorious Heritage. O Catholic youth, rejoice!

THE SENIOR WHITE BOOK

IN September of 1923, Central's doors were opened wide to permit the entry of many eighth grade graduates whose one purpose was to explore the seas of higher education.

After they had undergone the required formalities, they launched out into the unknown with the course of time proving their expectations rather far-fetched. They became the target for the ready criticism of the upper classmen, and upon their shoulders fell the burden of their new studies. They found time for their childish pranks and indulged in them; they sent young warriors to meet the competition of the athletic field and modestly accepted the praise these warriors gained.

Throughout the entire year they enjoyed this newness of things and at the end willingly accepted the rewards of which they thought themselves well worthy.

In their second year, as sophomores, their steps were more observed, and instead of being criticized, they found themselves possessors of the same tendency in respect to those who had filled their vacated places. Their studies were more difficult, yet they lacked the sting of newness. Somehow they came to the realization of the fact that the school was supporting various activities and, in consequence, they published an issue of the Centric; their warriors became main cogs in the athletic machine; their every undertaking met with due success and thus they finished their second year with a better knowledge of the nature of their exploit.

Then began the third, namely, their junior year, with the realization that half of their high school course was finished and half yet remained. The Junior Week of 1926 was heartily greeted and received commendation. The publication of the Centric, although not enlarging the circulation of the paper, held its own in a journalistic way. Their athletes were stars in every athletic event and, as a reward, upon the star of them all, fell the honor of being captain for the following year. Wide was the range of their activities and in proportion were their rewards.

They returned for their senior year with the determination to make their last chance prove best. They donned the responsibilities of leaders and set the pace for their followers. Their athletes experienced the most successful year in the history of Central. The publication of the Centric proved a very interesting project to all the members of the news writing class, but the activity that proved most difficult, yet most attractive, to the entire senior class, was the publication of the Centripetal.

Thus, amid the congestion of crowded classrooms and corridors, they have spent the four years of their high school course, and now, as they look out into the world, they begin to realize that for them it is not a time for retirement from the strife, but rather the beginning.

THE JUNIOR BLUE BOOK

Freshmen are born; they couldn't be made;
The sophomores and seniors developed,
But the juniors alone, a gift from on High,
Are all by the lime-light enveloped.

DO you remember the registration in the summer of 1924, our freshman year, with its light spirits, high hopes, and bold desire to conquer? Do you remember how we, the eighth-grade graduates of the various parochial schools, came to this institution, our diploma tucked under one arm, report card in hand, and pocketbook weighted down by an extra ten dollars? We thought we had proceeded so far on the road of education that we could not be caught by any question, but when, "What do you intend to be?" was asked by the Sister in charge of registration, we nearly quailed. After a few minutes' explanation, however, we decided our future by enlisting in an academic, commercial, mechanical drawing, or art course. We were all set for the rostrum, office desk, blue print, or paint brush then. That year fairly flew past for it was so new and novel to us.

September, 1925! Back again. Oh, boy!—full-fledged sophomores. Our classmates from the East Side branch are now with us; we are all in the main building—"where there is unity there is strength." We performed the deeds which tradition makes it imperative a sophomore should perform, but, in my opinion, just a trifle better.

1926, hurrah! Juniors at last! My, this is the class! Peppy? Yea! Review Junior Publicity Week; read the Junior Centric, and judge for yourselves.

We love our class, but every earnest student's ambition is to be a senior. Wait until next year! All I ask is that our audience be equipped with glasses so as not to be blinded by our dust. Nobody will be able to keep the class of '28 from the top.

THE SOPHOMORE RED BOOK

THEY ARE SEVEN

The activities in which the sophs take part,
How many may they be?
How many? Seven in all! I'll start
To tell their history.

Ah, what is it? I pray you tell.
I repeat, in seven are we,
Literature, orchestra, mission, as well
As basket and football, clubs, short story.

TO find out more of the sophomores' work during the scholastic year one need only inquire into the matter of literature, orchestra, mission, basketball and football, clubs, and short stories, as well as any other school activity, to see the parts they played.

Annually the sophomores publish the Saint Patrick's issue of the Centric, a fine result of well-spent time and labor. This year all records of preceding years were surpassed and the Centric was a great success.

Joseph Joyce, Orville Blair, Adolph and Albert DePrisco, Irene Zawodni, Harry Kibler, Leslie Holly, Margaret Maginn, Margery Schmidt, and Verlee Rossman are the sophomore members of Central Catholic High School's famous orchestra.

When the call for contributions for Foreign Missions was proclaimed throughout the school, Central sophomores did their bit in contributing to this worthy cause. They are represented in the Mission Society by Harry Kibler, secretary; representatives from the home rooms, Kenneth Lewis and Frances Sherriff.

Sophomores on the boys' basketball team are Anthony Sodd, Thomas Keefe, and Paul Kill. On the girls' team are Antoinette Coombs, Jeanette Berlin, and Gertrude Brooker. They did well their part in winning games, or they cheerfully faced defeat.

Thomas Keefe, Charles Kessler, Thomas Clarke, James McCarthy, Max Woodka, Ralph Ingraham, Roy Marshall, Clair Farrel and John Palmer aided in gaining for Central its undefeated football season of '26 and '27.

Among their many clubs are the Little Litterateurs, Literary Club, Alpha Beta Sigma Literary Club, Quid Pro Quo, Semper Fidelis, and Pambion, a biology club. These were formed to create a more active interest in the study of English, Latin and biology, and they have accomplished their aim well.

In the annual short story contest, which is one of the most important events of the first semester, Elmer Morrison and Angela Cannon, both sophomores, took first and second prizes, respectively.

We can confidently say that every sophomore out of the 220 of that body has done his part on the sophomore stage of '27.

THE FRESHMAN GREEN BOOK

Phone at freshman building: Ting-a-ling-a-ling.

Office assistant: "Freshman building."

C. Wagner: "I wish to speak to a freshman."

Office assistant: "All right, just a moment."

Freshman: "Yes-s-s?"

C. Wagner: "This is Wagner speaking. Yes, Clayton Wagner, editor-in-chief of the Centripetal. I'd like to get some inside dope on this year's freshman class. What about all you green youngsters?"

Freshman: "Much obliged for the compliment, Mr. Wagner, for green is the emblem of hope and the freshmen are the hope of Central."

Wagner: "Well, I'll have to give you credit; you surely slipped one over on me that time. Say, what do you think of C. C. H. S?"

Freshman: "We like our principal, Father Shumaker, and all our teachers. We think the members of the freshman class have shown themselves live wires in backing student activities. This is expected, of course, because the freshmen compose half of the student body. We are rather proud of our honor roll in the Centric. Have you noticed the large number of freshmen who are possessors of three, four, and five A's?"

Wagner: "Don't mention that honor roll. We hear enough about it now. Who are your class officers out there?"

Freshman: "We have a fine set of class officers—Arthur Brown, Kathleen O'Rourke, Mary Rose Bauer, and Edmund Czarnecki."

Wagner: "Wonderful workers, I've heard. Why, you freshmen are nearly as well off as we are."

Freshman: "Nearly as well off as you? Why, we are ahead of you. We have a good athletic field, part of the new building, and, last but not least, we have a very large study hall. Why, it is so large that we may get a megaphone for the teacher to use when she calls the roll. Say, we could put Room 10 in the corner of Room 50 without noticing any loss of space at all."

Wagner: "Comparisons are odious; let's change the subject. I suppose you are too young to have any clubs."

Freshman: "Nearly all of our classes have some beneficial clubs. Most of us look forward to our club day in English, because we profit so much from the talks given by the students. Our algebra class has its Alpha clubs; there are socialized recitations in science, history and Latin. Our mission activities are promising, as shown by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the Penny-a-Day which are thoroughly organized."

Wagner: "Yes, that's true. What about sports?"

Freshman: "We had many good men on the gridiron this year, and by a look at the number of freshmen in spring practice, we will have many more next year. We also had men on the basketball floor. We have well organized indoor, consisting of three leagues of five teams each. This indoor league plays at noon."

Wagner: "Well, thanks for the news. Now toddle along to your classes."

OUT from the sombre wilderness
Into the light,
A city, rich in dowry,
Royal,
Sovereign, by position, to all lake ports.
The myriad ships that hasten to her throne
Bring tribute.
Steel vessels, laden deep,
From Sweden, England, France,
Warm Brazil and Argentine,
Old ships and new ships,
Big ships and small ships,
Bring tribute for the Queen,—
Metals,
Torn from northern hills,
To be fire-tried and tempered;—
Grain,
From wind-swept western fields;—
Lumber,—
Scented pine, sturdy ash, gnarled oak,
The strength of northern forests
Glinting in its heart.
Tribute!—
Tribute to the Queen!—
Toledo.

LAKE ERIE

ACOMFORTER of white across his chest,
He sleeps throughout a three months' winter night
Until the irate sun, his patience fled,
Pulls off the blanket with his arms of light.

The giant wakes to greet the grey March dawn.
He shrugs his shoulders, shaking off the thrall
Of lazy dreams. His work-day has begun.
No rest for him till winter's night shall fall.

All summer long he carries to and fro
Huge freighters loaded to the very brim
With tons of sooty coal, rich, ruddy ore,
Or dusty grain; they're all alike to him.

The autumn days come on; the giant tires;
A spark of temper glimmers in his eye
And bursts in flame. Then, with a berserk roar,
He struggles madly under sullen sky.

His weary brain with blood-lust filled, he fights
And battles with the wind until his files
Of roaring troops are cast in tumbling heaps
Against the rocky cliffs, protecting isles.

He charges, and assails the sturdy shores
Which calmly cast him back into the deep.
And then, when wintry night restores the peace,
The grumbling giant sinks again in sleep.

TOLEDO—ITS PAST

THE history of the foundation of Toledo is not a spectacular one. It is not the story of a Washington whose site was chosen by the man whose name it bears as he gazed with enraptured eyes along the banks of the beautiful Potomac. No Junipero Serra with his band of followers climbed the hills, as they did behind San Francisco, to name the magnificent Bay which lay before them after the great St. Francis, and to plant the Cross of Christ upon the ground where the city of that name stands today.

No, the story of the development of Toledo is quite unpretentious; it is the tale of a city that emerged from a swamp—a city carved out from the wilderness, that struggled against the disadvantages of unhealthful conditions, yet grew in spite of every handicap. The impenetrable forest and the black and hideous marsh, at the southeast portion of the Maumee, caused Northwestern Ohio to be the last section in the Buckeye State to be colonized.

For untold centuries the Indian had complete possession of the valley of the Maumee. The Ottawa, Iroquois, Miami, Delaware and many other tribes all loved the paradise of productive fertility that stretched beyond the reach of the intruding swamp. The Red Man found a profitable hunting ground in the vast stretches of forest land, where wild game was so abundant. In this valley, four of the greatest statesmen and warriors of the Indians were born and lived—Orontony, Little Turtle, Tecumseh, and Pontiac.

Ominous to the savages, therefore, was the message brought by the whispering winds, heralding the approach of the white man. In 1679 the ship of LaSalle scattered anxiety among the inhabitants of the Ottawa village on Lake Erie. The boat stopped but for a moment, and then passed on. The time for the settlement of the white man had not yet come.

A year later de Frontenac, the royal representative of Louis XIV, gazed upon the dense wilderness perched above the high bluffs of the winding river. Admiration flamed within his eyes, but as they rested upon the sluggish swamp, whose lights whirled and danced with witch-like glee, he turned his back, sailed up the river, and at Maumee City, ten miles from the industrial center of Toledo, he founded the Miami Fur Trading Post.

Time and again sailing vessels passed up and down the river, blind to the potentialities of the site of Toledo. Maumee and Perrysburg became thriving settlements, while the location of the future metropolis lay neglected and shunned.

But the Indian of the Maumee Valley was not to be deprived of his lands quite so easily. Invasive occupation precipitated long wars. To settle the Indian conflicts and clear the land for settlement, General Wayne, Mad Anthony of Stony Point, was sent in 1793 into the northwest. Like a hurricane, he swept through the valley of the Maumee and in the historic battle of Fallen Timbers crushed the Indian power of the northwest.

The year 1834 marked the departure of the last bronzed natives from the river they loved and the valley where once they had found happiness, peace, and a retrograde civilization. About one hundred Ottawas gazed longingly behind them as they moved westward to the reservation beyond the Mississippi.

In the early part of the nineteenth century, there were many thriving and populous towns between the Atlantic coast and the Allegheny Mountains. The spirit of the pioneer was in the veins of these settlers. Night and day the "everlasting whisper" heard by Kipling's "Explorer" came to them,—

"Something hidden. Go and find it. Go and look behind the Ranges—Something lost behind the Ranges. Lost and waiting for you. Go!"

Like the same character, they stole away with pack and ponies and came to the settlements of northwestern Ohio.

In 1819 Port Lawrence was founded upon the banks where the waters of Swan Creek meet the Maumee. A lack of energy among the promoters caused the settlement to diminish instead of to expand. In 1833 Major Benjamin F. Stickney founded the town of Vistula near the forgotten village of Pontiac. Before Vistula could celebrate its first birthday, the two heretofore jealous townships agreed to unite. The name of a city of ancient Spain was suggested and enthusiastically accepted. Thus the town was named Toledo after the Spanish city perched high on the rugged Castilian cliffs, towering its magnificence over the winding waters of the Tagus.

In 1836 the village of Toledo was incorporated as a city, and the Miami and Erie Canal project launched in the following year brought home-seekers to the locality. The city did not grow or improve rapidly. The dreaded "Maumee Fever" claimed many brave souls. "Death Valley" was the name the place received from rival towns. Small throats merrily serenading throughout the long nights earned for the city the enviable title of "Frogtown." As late as 1850, the two sections were connected by a long thoroughfare that won fame as a sea of slimy mud. Deer, bear, and wolves roamed the bordering forests, and drinking water was almost as scarce as upon the sands of the Sahara.

In 1836, just ninety-one years ago, Toledo had one hundred inhabitants. In 1846, ranking as a great canal and lake port, and possessed of the first railroad in the west, the Erie and Kalamazoo, the city had three thousand souls.

But Toledo had the location and the essentials of a great city. Strategically located at a point where rail and vessel must meet for trans-shipment, where raw materials could be converted into manufactured products, Toledo needed but the boom of an industrial wave, and that wave came. Today Toledo stands as a city of diversified industries, manufacturing everything from sugar to ships.

As the city expanded and vacant land gave way to the homes of industry, thoughtful citizens realized the need of fine educational institutions, the need of facilities for out-of-door amusement, the satisfaction of happy contented homes, and they made these needs realities.

Not until 1936 will Toledo celebrate its centennial birthday. At present the city is but a growing giant with its full growth yet to come.

LINUS F. SIELOFF, '27.

TOLEDO—ITS FUTURE

THE sage observation that Providence has caused a large river to flow past every great city is as nearly true today as it was when Babylon, Rome, and London were built. New York located at the mouth of the majestic Hudson, New Orleans on the lower Mississippi, Minneapolis and St. Paul at the head of the same river, and St. Louis on the first highland below the confluence of the Missouri and the Mississippi are American examples which illustrate the fact.

A harbor alone, however, will not make a great city. The complexities of modern industry and commerce have made other factors important. The primary essential of a large city today is a strategic location on a highway of commerce. Then it must have easy industrial and transportation facilities. Only those settlements situated where there is a "break in transportation" become important cities. Wherever goods in transit must be changed from land routes to water routes, or from water routes to land routes, labor is required to load and unload them. Warehouses must be provided to store them, and quantities of supplies must be furnished to meet the wants of workers. These different activities necessitate the living of many people within a small area, and, in consequence, a city develops.

If the region to which the city serves as an outlet or inlet is rich in raw materials, the quantity of goods shipped out and in is greatly increased, and the importance of the city is magnified accordingly. If the hinterland, as such a region is called, possesses large stores of iron, coal, and timber, the community is likely to become a center of manufacturing as well as of commerce, and to develop into a great metropolis.

Now, if we ask whether or not Toledo has the potentialities of a great city, we find out that its advantages for development are unexcelled.

Toledo is strategically located at the crossroad of two highways of commerce, the one which extends east and west between New York and Chicago, and that extending north and south between Duluth and the southern industrial centers. Being located in the midst of a rich hinterland of raw materials, it has become an important distributing point, and on account of excellent industrial facilities, it has become widely known as a manufacturing center.

Toledo is the largest soft coal port on the Great Lakes. It is a meeting-point for the coal from the Alleghenies and the ore from the Superior region, thus an excellent location for the manufacture of steel and iron products. Oil is pumped all the way from Texas to the great refineries, and in turn is shipped out a product serviceable to mankind. The tons of grain shipped into Toledo from the western grain states make it one of the primary grain markets of the country. The cheap and plentiful supply of natural gas, coupled with its nearness to valuable sand deposits, has made Toledo the fountain head of the glass industry of the world.

Geographically, Toledo is one of the best located cities in the nation from the standpoint of transportation and easy access to terminals. The city provides these facilities in such abundance that it ranks as the third railroad center of the country, Chicago and St. Louis being ahead. These railroads stretch out in all directions, making Toledo the nest of a vast web which encircles all the principal cities of the country.

In addition to railroad facilities, Toledo, located as it is along both banks of the Maumee, where this waterway flows into Lake Erie, has valuable water transportation facilities. The Maumee river is the largest river emptying into the Great Lakes. It is navigable for seven miles from the bay, making it possible for steamers to bring their cargoes into the very heart of the city.

The cities of the Great Lakes are on the threshold of a great commercial prosperity. This adventure is the opening of the St. Lawrence Waterway. True, the bill has not become a law, as yet, but eighteen states of the mid-West are clamoring for an outlet to the sea, and the bill must go through. The great congestion of freight at the harbor of New York cannot continue. It is impossible to over-estimate the tremendous importance of the St. Lawrence Waterway to the city of Toledo. Located, as it is, at the southwestern tip of Lake Erie, it is the logical western terminus of ocean shipping bound to the heart of America. Confident engineers have pronounced the Toledo harbor to be the finest harbor on the lakes, and the expenditure of the $70,000 recently appropriated for this port by the United States Government will, undoubtedly, be of material aid.

The nearness to large markets is another important factor in the growth of a city. Think of Toledo's advantages in this respect! Her railroads can reach fifty million people in one night.

There is no reason why Toledo can not become an important air port. The wide stretch of land at Bay View Park affords a fine site for an air field. The park is huge and can take care of seaplanes as well as airplanes.

The people of Toledo are beginning to realize their resources and advantages for development. Toledo's future is assured. "Toledo, the City of Opportunity" is a slogan with a meaning. Confident authorities say that Toledo's population will increase at the rate of ten thousand a year. The day is not far distant when we shall see airplanes stopping here on one leg of their journey with Uncle Sam's mail; also huge ocean steamers coming to our dock laden with raw materials of distant places and taking from us the myriad manufactures from the "Workshops of the Nation," as the central part of the United States is called.

There is no doubt that the youth of today will see the slogan of Toledo changed from "Toledo, the Gateway of the Lakes," to "Toledo, the Gateway of the Ocean".

GETHSEMANE

O MAN, quiescent 'neath God's smiling brow,
In peace serene effulgent grace is thine.
List not! those sibilating lips design
To cast thee from thy Paradise even now.—
Unhappy man, why didst thou thus allow
The thought of sin thy pure heart to ensnare,
For by thy sin from Eden's garden fair
By Him were cast thy beauteous Eve and thou.

O Christ, beneath the massive olive tree
The bloody drops announce Thy passion nigh.
Shall we not press about this Form of Thine
To hear again those words Thy Lips divine
Once said: When I shall be raised up on high,
Lo, I shall draw all things unto Me?

THE APOSTLE OF THE MAUMEE VALLEY

NOTE: Much of the material of the following essay was secured from the lips of one who was baptized by Father Rappe, and who, later, as the first native of Toledo to become a religious, labored many years under his jurisdiction. Now, although in her eighty-fifth year, she remembers well the great man and the early days in Toledo—Reverend Mother Aloysius, of the Ursuline Convent, Toledo, Ohio.

FRANCE, which has given so many saints to God, and so many missionaries to preach the gospel of Christ to the world, gave to the Maumee Valley its first missionary priest in the person of Reverend Amadeus Rappe.

From the summer of 1842 to the fall of 1847, Father Rappe suffered untold hardships, privations, and difficulties, in the "Mud Swamp" of the Maumee.

Father Rappe was born February 2, 1801, at Audrehem, a village near Ardres, France, of good French peasant parents. He had not much schooling, his father's design being to make him a farmer. But the ways of man are not always the ways of God. At the age of nineteen he expressed the wish to become a priest, and in 1829 he was ordained to the priesthood.

During his first five years he served as pastor of a small village church in his native country. He was then appointed chaplain of the Ursuline Convent at Boulogne-sur-Mer. It was here that he became interested in the work of the Propagation of the Faith Society, which excited in him a desire to devote himself to the American Mission.

Bishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, visited Europe, and while there met Father Rappe. The bishop pleaded so zealously for the needs of this large diocese, especially for priests and religious, that Father Rappe responded to his call and came to Cincinnati in 1840.

At this time he was thirty-nine years of age, a tall, slender, wiry man, filled with missionary zeal and the desire of sacrifice, yet unable to speak a word of English. He went to Chillicothe, where he learned the English language, a task which took two years. Then in 1842 he was sent to Toledo to organize a parish. There was no part of Ohio more unattractive than the Maumee Valley.

Toledo had been incorporated in 1836 and a number of settlers had been drawn hither by the Miami and Erie canal project. The upturned clay at the banks of the canal and the many swamps which dotted the district soon bred germs, causing a pestilence known as the Maumee fever, which overspread the small town and hurried a great number of its victims to an early grave. It was a common statement that on the banks of the Maumee "even the pigs shook with the ague."

A writer of 1848, describing Toledo, says: "Here we see the glory of mud: mud on the right of you; mud on the left of you; mud right in front of you; mud everywhere;—incomparable mud, yellow and blue; here and there sometimes stiff, generally soft and greasy."

From Adams almost to Monroe street, Summit street was banked on either side with walls of clay from five to twenty-five feet high. From Cherry to Adams streets there was not a house overlooking the low land, "The Flats," back of St. Clair street to the bank of the canal. It was dotted with stagnant pools; on the higher places small shanties had been erected.

To this uninviting and uncultivated field came Father Rappe. There were only fifteen Catholic families, most of them extremely poor. They had neither church nor priest. Tiffin was the nearest place whence sick calls were attended. He called upon each Catholic family and assembled them in the old court house. These fifteen families formed the nucleus of the future St. Francis de Sales' parish. From a Protestant congregation he purchased a frame church for $2400, a landmark, which may still be seen back of the present St. Francis de Sales' church on Superior street. Father Rappe said Mass at this church every Sunday; frequently, at Maumee City, and during the week at Fremont, Providence and Defiance.

At times on horseback, and at other times on foot, wearing hip-boots, he made his way throughout the often impassable roads of his large district.

A hardship of the time was the inadequate amount of drinking water. There was only one well in town, at which it was customary to pay for the water. This handicap, coupled with the dampness and unhealthful atmosphere of the canal, led to intoxication among the workingmen, an evil which Father Rappe endeavored, throughout his life, to overcome.

His first housekeeper told that in the early days, in order to economize, he used the water from the boiled potatoes for tea.

His kindliness and zeal endeared him to all. Untiring in zeal, patient in hardship, no labor seemed to worry or exhaust him. Although ill-versed in English, because learned late in life, he ranked as an orator of more than ordinary powers. It was his custom to preach at least three times every Sunday; frequently, four or five times, in churches miles distant from each other.

For five years he watched and prayed over his scattered flock, and it was with regret that he left to take up his new office as bishop of Cleveland in 1847. He held this post until 1870, but with the heart of a great missionary, he never forgot his first mission—the Maumee Valley.

MY FAVORITE STORY

ALTHOUGH I'm only six years old,
Many a story I've been told
Of giants, and dwarfs, and merry elves,
And Mother Hubbard's empty shelves.
But there's one story I like best,
For it's lots prettier than the rest.
It's all about a little Boy
Who came to earth to bring us joy.
He left His home in heaven above
To teach us the true God to love;
He left His ball, the silver moon,
A fleecy cloud, His toy balloon,
His rainbow paints, His blocks, the stars,
The rushing winds, His train of cars,—
He left them all to come and be
Just a little Boy like me.

SNOW FLAKES

*Little snow flakes falling down,
Are you gems from Mary's crown?—
Are you star dust from on high,
Swept from carpets of the sky?—
Or, are you angels pure and white
Sent to guide the world aright?—
Whatever you are, whatever you be,
Your silver sheen entrances me.*

DOROTHY WERNERT, '27.

SPRING

*There's a crowd of kiddies down the street,
A shabby old man is cranking away;—
Even the "cop" stops walking his beat;—
The music sings of Mandalay;—
A penny!—the monkey makes his rounds,
Dancing away to the brassy sounds;—
Surely, spring must be here.*

ARTHUR DEMARS, '28.

SIX YEARS OLD

*Now that I'm six years old today,
I think that I oughta have something to say—
'Bout the stuff I eat, an' the clothes I wear,
'Bout brushin' my teeth and combin' my hair.
I think it's a shame for a man like me
To wear short pants that just come to my knee.
An' I just hate spinach an' oatmeal, too,
But ma says: "Eat it; it's good for you."
An' my face an' hands get scrubbed, I guess,
A million an' one times, more or less;
Why they ain't even dirty half the time;
I think that too much washin's a crime.
But how are you gonna put up a fight,
When they say: "Now, dear, mama knows what's right"?
So I have to listen an' do what I'm told,
But you just wait till I'm ten years old!*

GERTRUDE COLLINS, '28.

THE LOCOMOTIVE

Snorting—
Steaming—
Round eye gleaming,
In from a long, hard run.
Leaving—
Heaving—
Black vault cleaving,
Onward to greet the sun.

Rushing—
Roaring—
Dark smoke pouring
In a curling plume behind.
Swinging—
Winging—
To hilltop clinging,
Against the sky outlined.
Click. clack, rumble, roar!
It almost seems to lift and soar,
Who would think that it's nothing more
Than a train?

THOMAS M. SULLIVAN, '28.

TO AN OLD SAND CRANE

It stands upon a lonely wharf,
A mass of scabby, rusty steel;
A frowsy, aged, tired beast
With spiders' webs on every wheel,
Now starving within reach of food—
The sand on which it used to feast.

THE ROMANCE OF A MILLION DOLLARS

DREAMS are numerous, usually hazy, and, generally, unreal. When a pleasant dream becomes a reality, ah!—that is something worth while. The greater the dream, the greater the reality, if it becomes such. The students of Central Catholic High School dreamed of a magnificent new high school building with a large rolling campus and a beautiful athletic field. With the help of God, the dream has begun to be a reality.

The present Central Catholic High School, really an outgrowth of the old Cathedral High School, was founded in 1920. All the Toledo parishes were organized to support a central high school, in which graduates from all the parish elementary schools might be permitted to enroll for high school work. The Right Reverend Joseph Schrembs, at that time Bishop of Toledo, leased the Toledo Medical College building, at the corner of Cherry and Page streets, from the Toledo University, for a period of five years, and equipped it for high school teaching. In September 1920, when three hundred and eighty students enrolled, it was found that the structure was too small. Immediately the construction of an annex to the main building was begun. This was occupied at Christmas, 1920.

Between 1921 and 1926 the enrollment had increased to seven hundred and twenty-four students, which necessitated procuring eight portables, and the use of rooms in different parish schools, in addition to the annex and the main building. The crowded condition of classrooms offered serious hindrance in the tasks of a modern high school. Latin classes, at times, were held in the domestic science laboratory; religion was taught in the chemistry laboratory; lunches were consumed and debates rehearsed in the furnace room.

In spite of all this, however, the scholastic standing of our students was high enough to win state, and even national, recognition.

A huge obstacle towards realizing the dream of a new Central was removed when in the spring of 1926 a large tract of land, the Curtis estate, bounded by Austin, Mettler, Cherry and Walnut streets, was purchased for $185,000.

Conscious of the fact that the conditions at Central in 1926 could not be permitted to continue, after much deliberation and consultation, the Right Reverend Bishop Stritch and the Reverend Pastors of Toledo decided to call upon the Catholics of this city to raise funds to build a Central Catholic High School, this to be done by means of a campaign from June 6 to June 13, 1926.

The pre-campaigning began in April, 1926. On April 24 all the Toledo pastors met at St. Anthony's Orphanage, and a number of committees were organized: Executive, Publicity, Speakers, Exchange of Pulpit, Quota, and Preferred List.

The direction of the campaign was in the hands of the Executive Committee consisting of the Right Reverend Bishop, who acted as chairman, and thirty of the priests of the city, with the Reverend R. G. Kirsch, principal of Central, as secretary. The function of this committee was to organize and to supervise the conduct of the campaign and to contribute in every possible way towards its success.

Serving directly under the Executive Committee was the Publicity Committee. This body took full charge of all publicity work, such as distributing inspirational literature and arousing in the Catholics of Toledo a realization of the imperative necessity of our new high school building.

As a result of the large Catholic mass meeting held in the Coliseum on May 16, where numerous speakers, selected by the Speakers Committee, were heard, intense enthusiasm and rivalry was created among the members of the respective parishes. By arranging satisfactory quotas, and by announcing the daily collections in the local newspapers, this rivalry was intensified.

On Thursday, June 3, 1926, the twelve hundred workers of the campaign met in Lasalle & Koch's dining-room for dinner. During the dinner, carefully selected speakers talked in order to arouse the most interest and rivalry possible among the solicitors in the respective parishes.

As in all great undertakings of life, help from God is necessary for success, so, in this project, fervent prayers were not forgotten. The students of Central had made continuous novenas of Holy Communion for about three years. When the campaign began, the Bishop requested the recitation of certain prayers each day, until the drive came to an end.

The campaign proper began on the morning of June sixth. Each day at noon parish representatives met in Lasalle & Koch's dining-room, where announcements were made concerning the progress of the campaign. These reports were published each evening in the local newspapers. The Catholics of the city watched with intense enthusiasm the steady increase in the treasury of the fund workers.

The strenuous, but very gratifying, Campaign Week came to an end with the assembling of all solicitors in St. Ursula's auditorium on the evening of Sunday, June 13, 1926, the Right Reverend Bishop presiding. Final reports by parish representatives showed that the last amount registered previous, $972,000, had increased to $1,115,542. Enthusiasm and cheers accompanied the announcement which proclaimed that a million-dollar goal had not only been reached but passed.

On June 18, every pastor in the city received a letter from His Lordship expressing heartfelt gratitude for the cooperative work in the campaign. In the same letter he complimented the Catholics of Toledo by stating, "They have made an outstanding record for themselves in the story of the fine accomplishments of American Catholics in the cause of Catholic education." He ordered certain prayers to be said during every mass for the ten days immediately following, in thanksgiving to God for the success attained.

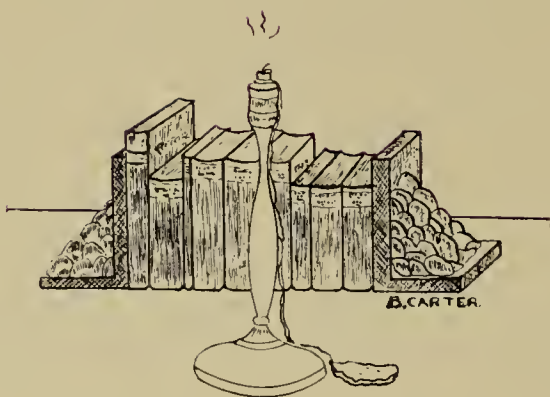

A remarkable fact connected with this splendid campaign was that no outstandingly large contributions were made. Some thirteen thousand individuals pledged themselves to contribute towards the fund. Thus the people of Toledo may feel that it is the money of practically all the Catholics and not of a certain few that will soon bring forth our New Central Catholic High School.

This part of the great dream has been realized! Soon the new school will be built as an outstanding monument in the city of Toledo. Had the Catholics of Toledo thought only of themselves, and not of the younger generation this campaign would never have come to a successful end.

It is due to the whole-hearted generosity of the Catholics of Toledo with the zealous labors of the Pastors and Assistants under God and the Blessed Virgin that Toledo will soon have a monument that will be the pride of the younger Catholic generation.

DRAMATIC ART

THE dramatic art classes of Central Catholic High School comprise all senior and junior girls. The classes are held every Wednesday at the regular English periods and are under the direction of Miss Mary Ida Talty.

Public performances of this year consisted of three one-act plays, presented as a matinee at St. Ursula's auditorium on March 1. Other minor performances were also given.

Elocution contests took the place of the annual play which hitherto has decided the awarding of monograms. The final contest was held at St. Mary's auditorium during the first week of June, when a gold monogram was awarded to the winner and silver monograms to the other contestants.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

WITH THE FUTURE DRAFTSMEN

OVERCROWDED conditions of the mechanical drawing rooms of Central Catholic High School do not in the least dampen the enthusiasm of its students. The following pages will show some of the splendid work being turned out by pupils of Reverend Gerald W. E. Dunne, instructor.

The first drawing that appears in this section is that of a WACHS fourteen horse-power steam engine, which was given to us by the Moriarity Brothers (dealers in new and used machinery). All parts of this steam engine have been drawn and traced by the advanced students, but the elevation of the engine was assigned to Martin Jendrzejak, a senior. His work has been favorably commented upon by professional draftsmen who realize his ability with the pencil and pen. Marty has spent a considerable amount of spare time on his work, and he has produced some of the best amateur drawing in the city.

A 1922 Buick roadster, presented to the class by Mrs. Mary Lockard (of the McPartland Red Cab Co.), has kept the class busy throughout the year. This old roadster was dismantled and all its parts drawn by upperclassmen. Since it is impossible (because of lack of space) to reproduce all the prints, you will find only the drawings of the motor-head and steering details, two complicated jobs which also bear the signature of Martin Jendrzejak. These prints, 7x5, in the Centripetal are a reduction of the original drawings, 41x30.

One other drawing offered is that of the assembly of the Buick mentioned above. The contract for this job also went to Martin Jendrzejak whose technique in this line enabled him to produce a drawing of high standard.

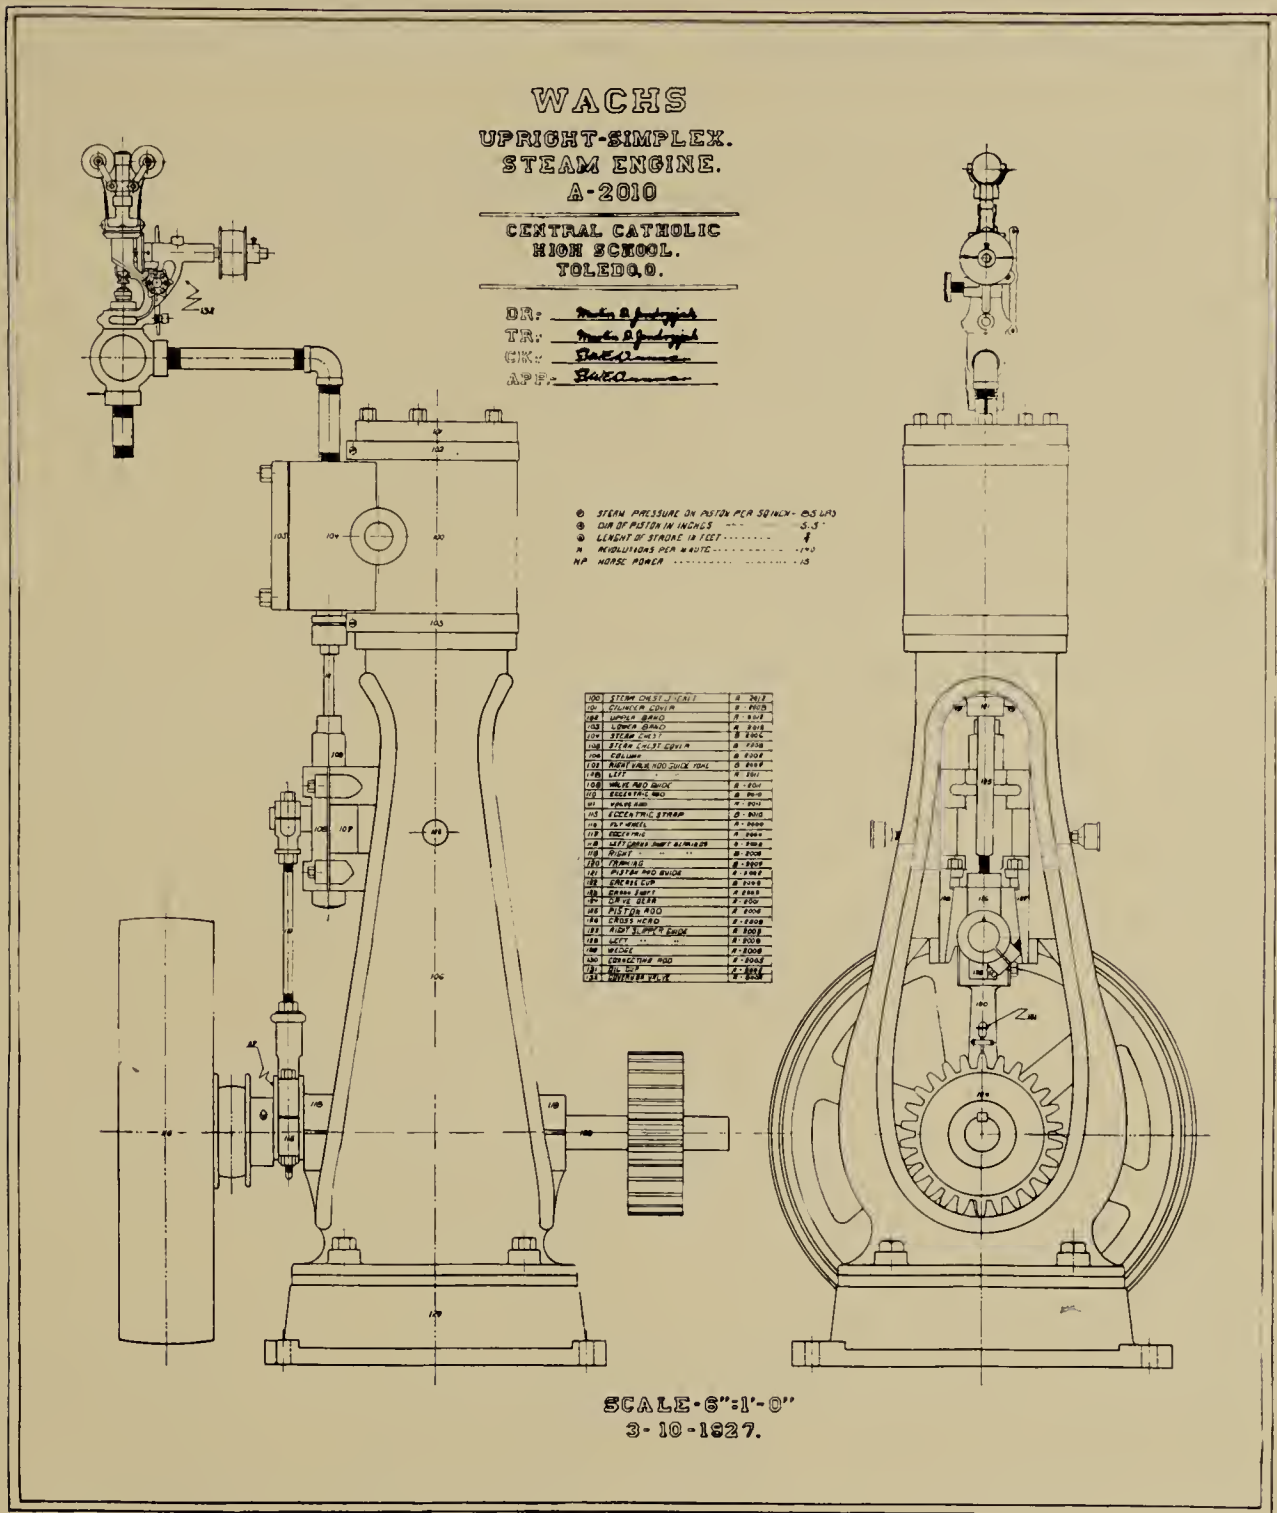

The architectural sketches that appear are the work of Donald Hepp, another senior, who well deserves a place of honor in this section. His drawings of the Right Reverend Bishop's residence represent no inconsiderable amount of time and work. After weeks spent in scaling and sketching the building, Hepp produced two excellent views, the north and the east elevations. With these views and the floor plans, he projected a beautifully executed perspective, which will be found on the reverse side of the double sheet. This is considered a very difficult job for an amateur and the neatness and accuracy which characterize it have won for Hepp much praise.

Another drawing of his is of special interest to all of us. Early this year a survey was made of the land upon which a new Central Catholic High School is to be built. The field notes taken in this survey were turned over to Hepp who drew a map of the land that thousands of Catholics in the city have helped to buy.

Were space available we would like to publish more. We wish, however, to give honorable mention to another senior, Linus Sieloff, who has done most creditable work.

We students of this course attribute our success to Father Dunne, whose knowledge of mechanical drawing reaches far and wide. We assure him that in the years to come we will not forget his untiring efforts—efforts that will have made us men of sterling qualities, worthy to represent Central in the world of industry.

ATHLETICS

ALVIN J. SACKSTEDER

Alvin J. Sacksteder, better known about Central as "Sax," is the man most responsible for Central's success in athletics for the past two years. His work entails the coaching of football, basketball, and baseball, and his ability is manifested in the fact that all his teams are of a championship caliber. In this, his second year of coaching, his football team ceded the city championship to Waite, only after a post-season game could not be arranged.

The basketball team lost four of nine games played and won the Championship of the Catholic high schools of the city.

His baseball team of 1926 claimed the Ohio State High Championship, having lost no games during the entire season.

Al has had much experience in his line of work both as a coach and as a player. He was a letter man in three major sports, football, basketball, and baseball, at Ohio Wesleyan, a few years ago. After graduation he was assistant coach for his Alma Mater. Later he became basketball mentor at Leipsic High School. There his basketball team won the sectional Class "B" championship.

His popularity is growing. Among Central's athletes and alumni he has made many friends. With but three varsity football men graduating this year, "Sax" has every chance in the world to snatch the City High School Championship next fall.

Let's go, Al.

"DOC" MUENZER

Line-coach, "Doc" Muenzer, was a big factor in making the Scarlet and Gray football season a success. He was on the field, working with the line men, during all of his spare time. His method of development made Central's chargers feared by all opponents.

How about next year, Doc? Where is your picture?

"CLETE" O'BRIEN

Freshman coach, "Clete" O'Brien, is one of those willing-to-serve fellows whose love for his school is of the undying quality. During the football season, "Clete" tutored the reserve squad and did a fine job of it. Although this was O'Brien's first real attempt at coaching, results prove him to be of real worth.

While at Central, Clete played end on the varsity football squad for three years.

We want you again next season, "Chick."

ADVISORY COACH "PAT" DWYER

Central has acquired one of the finest line coaches in the state in signing James K. Dwyer as advisory coach. "Pat," before taking up tutoring, was a member of the varsity eleven at the University of Pennsylvania. He has also spent four years of successful coaching at Scott High and at Toledo University.

He will probably have charge of the line men and promises a fast charging forward wall next season.

STUDENT MANAGERS

(lower right)

William (Bill) Malone and Francis (Gene) Bolger were the student athletic managers for 1926-1927. Both had a direct bearing on the final standing of both the football squad and the cage team. They sacrificed their own time and energy that others might benefit, and were very successful in this respect, too.

We are glad you will be back next season, fellows!

CHEER LEADERS

The cheer leaders this season were Ray Bolger and Stanley Krauset. They were not cheer leaders in name only, but "strutted their stuff" in natty Scarlet and Gray uniforms at every athletic contest played on Central field or on the basketball court. We lose Ray this year, but "Stan" will be back again.

Yea, team, let's go!

CENTRAL has again tasted the sweetness of a successful football season. At the opening of the 1926 campaign, everything pointed to a brilliant year. A new field awaited the gridders, and more athletes turned out for the team than ever before. There were many veterans back, also, intent on fighting to keep their berths on the varsity. The coaching staff was composed of such experienced mentors as Al Sacksteder, "Doc" Muenzer, "Pat" Dwyer and "Clete" O'Brien.

Mr. Sacksteder had arranged for the Scarlet and Gray warriors the toughest schedule in the history of the school, and the athletes were glad of it.

When the season was brought to a glorious climax by a win over St. John's, the school had the opportunity, for the first time, of looking back on an athletic season which had been an unbroken string of victories. The school spirit during the entire season was very beneficial in making the campaign a very successful one.

In the first performance of the 1926 season the Scarlet and Gray of the varsity waved triumphantly over the rags and tatters of the Alumni. The score at the end of the battle was 20-13. Ex-coach "Chuck" Curtin almost ruined the afternoon for our athletes with his all-around work for the former graduates. Captain Conlan and Rihacek in the backfield, and "Red" Steils, on the line, starred for the varsity.

On the following Friday an old foe came, saw, and was conquered. Fort Wayne journeyed here from the Indiana state to be turned back to the tune of 17-0. The Central crew had little trouble with the Hoosier squad and the backfield found it easy to tear off substantial gains through the forward wall, or by skirting the ends. Fort Wayne, on the other hand, could not get under way and was forced to punt time after time. In this contest the line play was much improved, Steils, Farrell and Bartley breaking up enemy plays almost at will. Rihacek led in the scoring with two touchdowns.

Our warriors, the next week, hit the trail for the place where the tall corn grows. Leipsic was sorry afterwards that we were on their schedule, for the score was 20-0, with our crew on the heavy end. "Sax's" former athletes, although playing on home territory, found the going tough. Central's aerial attack was brilliant in this fracas. The victory, however, was costly as "Flash" Bartley, clever left-end, was lost to the team for the remainder of the season because of a broken collar-bone. Al's second string backfield showed to advantage in its stay in the game.

Representatives from the Auto City were next on the books. They, too, fell before the terrific onslaught of our team, 34-6. We had prepared for a tough encounter from the University of Detroit High squad, but they fooled us. The Detroit lads were unable to do anything with the Scarlet and Gray forward wall, and had to pass or kick. Captain Conlan had a field day at their expense and turned in every point the team piled up. In this game, the blocking of the Central squad was much improved over that of the previous contest.

On the following Sunday the team took the beaten path for Dayton. There they tackled the University of Dayton High squad and emerged victors on the tall end of a 22-0 count. The team played a flashy game on a field covered with water, skidding and swimming to three touchdowns, and a safety. On the first play in the second half, Conlan swam, dodged, side-stepped, and slid sixty-eight yards for the first touchdown with the aid of brilliant interference. Vicious tackling, splendid interference, and fine blocking aided in this win.

The husky St. Joseph's bunch, from Detroit, were the next to submit to defeat. On a wind-swept gridiron, which made punting dangerous, Central resorted to a running attack. Although the second string backfield took the ball to the Detroiters' one-yard line, in the closing minutes of the first half, Al's crew did not score until late in the third stanza. The second line played almost the entire fray, as the varsity players were being saved for the Woodward contest a week later. The seconds did a fine job of it, too, especially on the line. The final score was Central 14, St. Joseph's 0.

Then came the thriller! Central 13—Woodward 6! For the second time in our annals, we beat Tech, and, oh, how sweet this victory tasted! The contest began after impressive ceremonies, including the dedication of Central Field and the raising of the American flag, presented for the occasion by Woodward. Captain Conlan made the first score of the game when he snatched up a fumble and crossed the goal line. Tom Keefe pulled the feature play of the day when he stiff-armed and side-stepped his way eighty yards for the final score, late in the third stanza. Every Central man showed the old Central spirit and fought his hardest to acquire the team's seventh successive victory.

In the final game of the season the Central squad downed the fighting Cubs from St. John's, 22-0. Out-weighted, but not out-fought, the Saints offered plenty of resistance to the Scarlet and Gray team. In the first half, the game was a punting duel, interspersed with a forty-yard run for a touchdown by Captain Conlan. Joe Stechschulte, in this battle, made his first and only touchdown of the year. The close of the encounter found our Central varsity athletes finished with scholastic football forever.

Captain Conlan, Komorowski, Tanber and Drzewiecki, are the ones forced to bow to the grim reaper—graduation.

Butch was leading high school scorer this year. Too bad you're finished at Central, Conlan.

VINCENT (SKEEDS) KOMOROWSKI

A smashing end who'll be missed next season.

LEO (WOODS) DRZEWIECKI

A guard whose pleasure is piling them up.

ABRAHAM (ABIE) TANBER

Small but mighty, fits Abie to a T.

FRANK (RED) STEILS, Captain-elect

Next year's skipper who will keep up the 1926 record.

LAWRENCE (TUBBY) LUCKER

A small smasher of uncanny ability, is Tubby.

JOSEPH (STECK) STECHSCHULTE

Steck was an end on the All-City team. A great honor to a great player.

JOHN (JOHNNY) RIHACEK

A caller of signals who has few peers.

RALPH (DUDE) INGRAHAM

Two more years, Dude. Let's see you star.

MAX (BEEF) WOODKA
You went great guns in your first year Max.

CARL BINKERT

PAUL COSTIGAN

ROY CAREY

JAMES MCALEAR

ALFRED MCCARTHY

THEODORE SOENS

Roy Carey, Alfred McCarthy, James McAlear, Theodore Soens, all freshmen, promise to be the future stars of Central. Carey and Soens have done wonders as new men in the game on the line, while "Irish" McCarthy starred as a reserve quarterback. When the two varsity ends, Stechschulte and Bartley were out of the line-up with injuries, Jim McAlear filled the position with all the qualities of a veteran.

With another year of experience these four lads will rank with the best players of the city.

Francis McCarthy, sophomore, Paul Costigan, sophomore, and Carl Binkert, freshman, have all the earmarks of football players. Although new in the game, they progressed rapidly under the direction of "Sax" and are bound to be stars in the coming seasons.

Charles Kessler, sophomore and Wilfred Gase, junior, have both showed the proper spirit. Kessler is bound to become Keefe's rival for the position of fullback, and Gase will play varsity football. Let's go, fellows! Whoopee!

THE cage season this year, while not quite as successful in the number of games won as the football season, was, nevertheless, a decided success. Although downed twice by our old foe, Woodward, the squad, however, gave Scott High a decisive trimming in the feature contest of the year. We have yet to feel the thrill of beating the Carpenters.

The first contest of the year was at Tiffin where the gang trounced Calvert High, 35-10, in a one-sided battle. The passing of the Green and White flashed in this contest.

Woodward 25—Central 18—so passed our first chance of the year to down the Carpenters. It was a red-hot battle which found Tech playing versatile basketball. Although we lost, Tech knew they had played in a real basketball game.

On the following Saturday Sacksteder's crew won its biggest victory of the year in trouncing Scott cagers, 24-14. Sweeney and Sodd stood out above their team mates by playing spectacular court games in this win.

The next battle was at Westminster gym. The Green and White court scoring romped off with an overwhelming victory, 20-12, over the Junior Saints. It was an exciting game from start to finish. St. John's stiff opposition was worn down by the zip of Central passing.

Taking to the beaten path the following week, Al's crew fell before the onslaught of the University of Detroit High School, 28-19. The Preps gathered an early lead which was too large for our boys to overcome.

Continuing on the road, Central's cagers next met with success at Fremont, knocking off the St. Joseph's High, 35-22, in a fast and furious encounter. The Saints were dazed by our team's passing and the deadly accuracy of its sharpshooters.

Although again playing on a foreign court, Central's flashy cagers took a decisive win over Adrian High, on the following Saturday, 30-23. The feature of the tilt was the superb guarding of Conlan and Sodd, for "Sax's" crew.

Central 22, St. John's 19! The squad celebrated Washington's Birthday in fine style by nosing out the Junior Saints and grabbing the Catholic high school championship of the city. It was an exciting and lightning-fast encounter, which found Keefe playing his best game of the year.

The next one was a heart breaker. The boys led until the gun was due to pop, when Akron passed and looped its way to a 23-20 victory, at Westminster gym. Although defeated, Al's crew played one of its finest games of the year.

Drawing Woodward in the City Tournament, Central's cagers were determined to win—so were the Carpenters. They did, 20-17. Our squad led until the third stanza, when Tech went wild and looped several shots from long range.

Don't worry, we'll get them next year, gang!

PERSONNEL

JOSEPH (STECK)
STECHSCHULTE

Captain, after his first year! Steck is due to reach the pinnacle of court fame next year.

EDMUND (BUTCH) CONLAN

We'll hear plenty about this fellow in college athletics.

VINCENT (VIN) SWEENEY

Sweeney was one of the fleetest forwards Central ever possessed.

ANTHONY (DEACON) SODD

Besides being a clever guard, Deac was adept at caging the sphere.

ANDREW (ANDY) KANDIK

Andy must take Butch's place next season.

THOMAS (TOM) KEEFE

You out-jumped and out-guessed them all this year, Tom.

PAUL KILL

Kill made a great sub his first year out.

MRS. BERTHA BRICKETT

Ever since the beginning of Central Catholic High School, seven years ago, Mrs. Brickett has been the girls' athletic director. During that time she has produced many basketball teams of merit. Patience and perseverance are the characteristics which distinguish her work and every girl at Central will testify to the love and esteem they bear her.

THE SEASON

ON December 11 we opened the season with a winning game, defeating the Alumnae by a 17-13 score. Many weak points were brought out to be corrected by strenuous practice.

The following week we played St. Ann's of Fremont and this speedy sextette proved too much for us. The final score was 22-12.

On January 7 we traveled to Tiffin for our first out-of-town game. This time we carried off the laurels, beating the Calvert High girls, 13-7. Thanks to their hospitality our trip was very enjoyable.

January 21 found us playing our old rival, Notre Dame. The 34-16 victory of our opponents left us down, but not out.

We took another trip on February 4, to Metamora, only to suffer defeat again. The game was thrilling and speedy, ending with a 16-14 count.

On February 22 Metamora returned our visit and was beaten by the close score of 18-17. This game was another thriller and kept the audience on its toes.

Next we met St. Ursula's at Urban Hall. Whew! Absolutely the most exciting game of the season, as indicated by the 21-21 score. They almost beat us, but we showed our "do or die" spirit in the last quarter.

On February 25 we won our most decisive victory of the season when we defeated the Redeemer Lutheran team, 40-21.

Alas! The week end of March 11 was a disastrous one for us. We took a trip to Fremont where St. Ann's overcame us, winning the game at the last minute by making a 19-20 score, our favor, a 21-20 score their favor.

On the next day we suffered another defeat when Notre Dame conquered us. The final count was 28-18. Since they had trounced us twice during the season, we acknowledged them the better team.

For the last game of the season, we again played St. Ursula's and excitement was keyed to the highest pitch when the two teams came upon the floor. Hurrah! The victory was ours by 29-18 and we ended the season with a bang!

HELEN HAMMERSMITH
Keep your girl from doing what she thinks she's going to do. That's Helen.

LORETTA GRAMLING
"Guard that girl!" Loretta hears and obeys, to her opponent's dismay.

GERTRUDE BAUER
With an eye for the basket every time, our captain scored well.

CELESTE MILLER
As a good jumper and ball hawk,
Celeste gained the tip-off continually.

Jeanette L. Berlin '29

VIRGINIA RIMBOCH

Speed is this girl's middle name. One more year to show your prowess, Jinny.

ANTOINETTE COOMBS

Best long-shot forward Central ever had. Come on, Tony, there are two bright years ahead of you.

JEANETTE BERLIN

On guard! Jeanette is there. Hurrah for next year!

GERTRUDE BROOKER

Caging baskets is easy work for Gertrude. Two more years to show them how you do it.

CAPTAIN GERTRUDE BAUER

Although Gertrude Bauer has played but one year on the varsity she has shown herself a skilful forward and a captain capable of leading her team in victory or defeat. Her popularity was proved by her unanimous election at the beginning of the year.

MANAGER
HELEN HAMMERSMITH

Helen Hammersmith played guard on the varsity and also managed the team. She capably filled both positions. Scheduling games and taking care of the finances is no easy task, but Helen met all difficulties with a smile. Much of the season's success is due to her ability.

Our advertisers have contributed no small amount to the success of this annual, and we take this opportunity to thank them for the financial support and cooperation they have so graciously given us. We ask our readers to remember them when doing business.

SCIENCE

*We all must take some science,
As through our course we go;
I think it's science says
That science we must know.*

*This science is so queer and dull,
No matter how we find it,
I guess if we could see the sense
We wouldn't so much mind it.*

*Now I can't see the value
Of studying gravity,—
That things go down, not up.
Seems just "horse sense" to me.*

*The teacher says that water
Has a symbol you should know,
So students study and study,
To learn that it's H₂O.*

*Biology teaches funny things,
'Bout bugs and birds and leaves,
And how the caterpillar lives,
And the fine cocoon it weaves.*

*They tell us there are particles
Called atoms in the air.
We neither see nor feel them,
Yet we know that they are there.*

*And that's what's known as science,
From bugs to radios;
And what science won't discover,
The good Lord only knows.*

Why America Leads

All the laborers in the world, working from sunrise to sunset, could not perform the work that is done by power-operated machinery in the United States alone. Electrical energy has greatly increased the efficiency and earning power of the working man and also relieved him of much of the back-breaking muscular labor.

THE '27 SOPH IN 1935

*Supposing I still chance to be alive
In nineteen thirty-four or thirty-five,
And, dropping in from Montreal, or Boston,
Rove idly out to Cherry Street and Austin,
And viewing there a structure grand and spacious,
Be told it's Central—"Goodness, gracious!"
I'll say, perhaps, "Why, what an innovation!
You folks are missing half your education—
No portables to walk to in the rain,
No furnace room for lunches! Why, it's plain
You have no fun. No windows to climb out;
You know, you've too much room to get about.
How do your athletes get their training here?
The stadium's entirely too near.
The classrooms, too, with all their light and air—
There's not enough discomfort anywhere.
When face to face with comforts such as this.
It sure does make a fellow reminisce!
Yet I believe, despite this layout new,
That we had just as good a time as you."*

VERGIL

*One more old Vergil
Has wasted away.
From what remains of it,
I fashion my lay.
Pick it up tenderly,
Lift it with care,
Fashioned so slenderly,
Old and so rare.*

*Look at its covers,
Clinging like lovers,
Whilst its leaves constantly
Fall from the binding;
Take it up instantly,
Loving, not minding.*

*Touch it not scornfully;
Think of it mournfully,
With fond recollection,
Not of the stains of it—
All that remains of it
Is but one poor section.*

*Think of the work it cost;
Of all the sleep you lost,
Scanning its pages.
Vergil, now take your rest,
Well earned, among the blest,
And sleep through all ages.*

Mother (to little Bobbie): Bobbie, run out on the porch and get the evening paper.

Bobbie: But mother, I'm afraid 'cause it's so dark out there.

Mother: You shouldn't be afraid of anything. Bobbie, as God is everywhere.

Bobbie: Is He on the porch too?

Mother: Yes.

Bobbie goes to the door, opens it a little, and says: "Please God, hand me the paper."

SPEED?

Three ambitious lads argued about their respective speed:

1st says: I'm so fast, I can make the telephone poles by the roadside look like a fence!

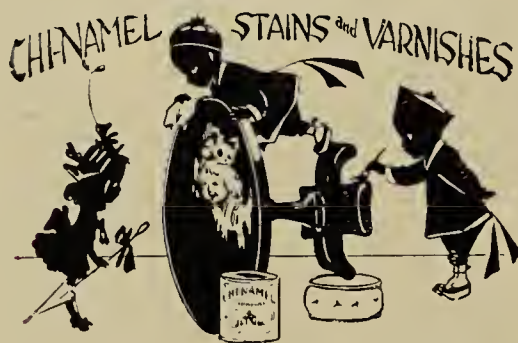

2nd replies: That's nothin'; If I pass a cornfield, a carrot patch, a bean and tomato garden and a stream of water, they look like vegetable soup.

3rd stretcher: Aw. I'm so swift I press the button, undress, and fall asleep, before the light goes out!

Clerk: We have a special sale of shaving sticks, sir.

Dugan: I'll take one. Rubbing whiskers off with a stick is a lot easier than using a razor.

Tanber: I'll give you a quarter if you guess how much this tire weighs.

Stewart: About twenty pounds.

Tanber: That shows how ignorant you are. I just put fifty-five pounds of air in that tire.

Chemistry Teacher (at Central)—“Who made the first nitride?”

H. Presser (Star Chemistry Student)—“Paul Revere.”

Senior: Good notes should be brief, clear, and orderly in arrangement.

Junior (reading from report card): B-C-D-X-F—just a little out of order.
